He killed lovers

Evil tries to kill love.

He gained control over their souls in his own mind, but his ideas were false. Evil power is self-deceiving.

He tried to be at the cutting edge of evil, killing when the forces of darkness in himself and in nature were most powerful. His desire to kill grew strongest when he knew dark phases of the moon were most prominent. He like to challenge God and the law officers in his defiance and inner rage.

With every killing he was able to purify his evil and delve deeper into mysteries of dark religion and the absolute essence of evil. He mocked religion by ~~how~~ borrowing from and perverting holy teachings. He avoided guilt by increasing the intensity of his corruption. Evil forces were largely in control of all he thought and did, although he wanted the control. Healy's own best

A con-man chooses nice names to fool the unsuspecting. Love instead of Hate. Day instead of Night, Starr instead of Black Hole.

The Zodiac used Wisdom to plan evil.

Religion to commit sacrilege.

Kind words to generate blasphemy.

Smooth speech to lead people astray.

Astrology to mask darkest evil.

A ~~hidden~~ ^{theatrical} life to separate opinions of others from his evil doings.

He used curiosity to make himself famous.

The Zodiac studied true reality so he could go deeper into evil reality.

He wanted control and was manipulative.

He tried to kill love, whose grip was stronger than his own, by killing lovers.

He could be nice at times but sometimes was overcome by every evil feeling imaginable.

He perverted religious meditation with his ego and hatred.

He was a polished liar, telling acceptable lies to fool the unwise. His smile hid his fury. He could not process thought or emotion in a healthy way. Where love was required, he had none. His troubles gained intensity but could not be balanced by love and forgiveness; they (emotions, thoughts) would hit a wall made by his ego and create pressure. He released the pressure by killing, which debased his spirit more every time. He sought communion with Satan and to learn from the evil of his violence. He wanted to be in control, but forces more evil than him were in control. His life was full of synchronicity of which he was often unaware. He sought glory over others instead of friendship and cooperation. He wanted to be a slave-master instead of a servant. He tried to hide by being very public. He displayed charm to hide his anti-social personality. He confessed quickly to hide his guilt.
